From the Principal's desk

All over the world, anti-vaxxers, as they are called, are spreading fake news and misinformation in an effort to convince people not to take a Covid-19 vaccine. Sadly, many of the anti-vaxxers are Christians who even resort to misrepresenting the Bible to support their cause.

From my perspective, I believe we have a Christian duty to receive the Covid vaccination. It is a simple and practical way for us to demonstrate love for our neighbour and an effective measure to promote the common good of all in our society.

There is also no factual basis for some of the farcical anti-vaccine claims that are being circulated. It is virtually impossible to insert a microchip into a vaccine, vaccines cannot alter your entire genetic DNA, Biblical scholars are saying, no, the vaccine is not the mark of the Beast and babies are not being aborted to produce this Covid vaccine. (The Oxford Astra-Zeneca was cultured in what is called an "immortal cell line", healthy rapidly dividing cells that were originally recovered from an aborted fetus in 1970 and have been used ever since to conduct clinical trials for new medicines and prototype vaccines.)

Our Christian response should be threefold - firstly, love our neighbour and take care of the vulnerable, secondly, thank God for providing the medical expertise to produce vaccines that have saved countless lives over the last 200 years and thirdly, be consistent in what we trust and do not trust - we pop paracetamol and ibuprofen tablets without a second thought, even though they are potentially more harmful than a vaccine, yet question a vaccine that has gone through extensive trials - where's the logic in that?

Please read the two articles below for an informed opinion - one is from a Doctor on the Premier Christianity site, and the other is a collection of articles debunking some of the most common vaccine myths.
